

NO MORE

Where I Disappeared.

BY ERROL HENDRICKSE

Before you begin reading, there is one person I must thank.

Writing this book has been many things.

Painful. Frustrating. Cathartic.

At times, I was convinced it would never be finished.

Words have never come easily to me. Not because I have nothing to say, but because getting what is in my head onto a page has often felt like a battle. Throughout that process, one person remained remarkably patient.

Listening.

Encouraging.

Reading draft after draft.

Reminding me why the story mattered when I was ready to abandon it. This book would not exist without those hours.

And hours.

And hours.

Chris de Wilde — this one's for you.

You are my hero.

